

Describing people's personalities

Lesson 8
Class 2

Describing personality traits

- Pick 2 personality traits and describe them to your partner, they will have to guess what trait is.
- You can directly describe the personality trait, or give examples of people that have that trait.

For example:

"This person always wants to help others and give them what they need, even if it means giving up something they have."

"Imagine someone who says, 'Oh, great job on the project,' when they really think the project is poorly done."

"It's someone who donates a lot of money to charity or a person who could give their lunch to a friend who forgot theirs."

"Think of a character like Chandler Bing from 'Friends,' who uses humor to make fun of situations."

Last night's date

- Student A: Choose a famous person
- Student A: You went on a date with this famous person/character last night, but you promised not to tell anyone.
- Student B: You're curious about your friend's date. Ask your partner questions to guess who the person was.
- What is he/she like?
- What does he/she look like?
- What did you do together?

Last night's date

- ◆ A: I went on a date last night.
B: Oh really? With who?
A: Someone famous, but I can't say who...
B: Well, what is she like?
A: She is friendly and sweet. She is very intelligent, independent, and a little overconfident.
B: Okay, what does she look like?
A: She is very pretty. She has long black hair, olive skin, and brown eyes. She is thin.
B: Well, what did you do with her?
A: We had dinner in the palace. Then we visited her managery and played with her pet tiger Raja. Our date ended when she pushed me off the balcony as her father came in.
B: Oh, I know! It's...

Acting out a personality

1. Work in pairs.
2. First, pick a card, it will tell you what's your personality like during the conversation.
3. Then, look at the board and start a conversation with your partner according to the situation that appears. Act the way your personality card says until your partner guesses what personality trait you were given.

Acting out a personality

- For example:
- Situation: talk about a problem you had with a classmate

sympathetic

Person 1: Hey, I wanted to talk to you about something that happened in my class today.

Person 2: Okay, What's going on?

Person 1: Well, Sarah from my biology group completely ignored my ideas for our project. It's like she doesn't care about anyone else's input.

Person 2: Ugh, that's frustrating. I'm sorry you're dealing with that. Have you talked to her about it?

Person 1: No, I I'm worried it'll create tension between us.

Person 2: I get that, but you deserve to be heard. Maybe it's worth speaking up.

Person 1: I guess I just didn't expect her to be so dismissive...

Person 2: It's disappointing when people let you down like that. You're not wrong to feel that way.

Person 1: Thanks for understanding. It means a lot.

Person 2: Anytime.

Acting out a personality

Mean

- For example:
- Situation: talk about a problem you had with a classmate

Person 1: Hey, I wanted to talk to you about something that happened in my class today.

Person 2: Okay, What is the drama?

Person 1: Well, Sarah from my biology group completely ignored my ideas for our project. It's like she doesn't care about anyone else's input.

Person 2: Classic Sarah, always thinking she's the star of the show. Did you tell her something?

Person 1: No, I I'm worried it'll make things awkward between us.

Person 2: Who cares? You're too nice. You let people walk all over you. Stop being such a pushover!

Person 1: I guess I just didn't expect her to be so dismissive...

Person 2: Well, maybe next time you'll learn not to trust people so easily.

Person 1: Well, thanks for your honesty... I guess...
